INTRODUCTION

Following the success of the second edition held in October 2015 the third edition of EduTraC Oman was held from 18-20 October 2016 at Oman International Exhibition Centre. The three-day event took place under the patronage of Ministry of Higher Education, Ministry of Education – National Career Guidance Center, Ministry of Manpower.

DEDICATED HIGHER EDUCATION PAVILION

As Oman's investments on higher education and training continue to grow, EduTraC Oman provided a direct gateway and an ideal platform for leading local and foreign universities and training institutions to network with students, parents and working executives interested in education & training at all levels. The expo offered a strategic awareness opportunity to higher education and training providers to strengthen their presence in Oman's vibrant education market.

EduTraC Oman - a much anticipated education exhibition gathered professionals from the global education domain and representatives from reputed universities under one roof opening doors of opportunity for students wanting to study in Omani and international universities.

DEDICATED TRAINING & JOB PAVILION

The expo also featured a pavilion for job seekers to meet HR personnel from different industry sectors, associations, government organizations and private sector companies who promoted the available On-the-Job Training & job vacancies for prospective candidates. A dedicated pavilion for Banking and Finance institutions provided an excellent opportunity to job seekers interested in hunting job opportunities in banking & Finance sector and young entrepreneurs in obtaining financing information to start their new business as well as for the needs of their existing business.

TESTIMONIALS

“EduTraC Oman is high profile event organized under the patronage of the Ministry of Higher Education. The main purpose of EduTraC Oman is to facilitate students and visitors to envision their academic and career paths to help them pursue their higher education and achieve their future goals. The Ministry is delighted to support EduTraC Oman to achieve several objectives that would provide a true picture of the renaissance taking place in the Sultanate under the wise leadership of His Majesty Sultan Qaboos bin Said, the architect of modern Oman.”

H.E. Dr. Abdullah Al Sarmi

Muscat: EduTrac Oman 2016 highlighted higher education opportunities in Oman and abroad. The third edition of EduTrac played host to several universities and colleges from Oman and abroad, including 15 universities from the United States. The three-day event was an excellent occasion for prospective students to get in touch with universities.

Nizam, a professional quality engineer, who wants to pursue his education outside Oman, said such events are an excellent opportunity, especially for people who are unable to get time off their work schedule to research universities online. "I feel such events must happen in Oman more often as they help people decide their future place of study. Considering that we can talk to the university officials directly, it is the best place to be when in pursuit for higher education." Nizam also mentioned that if university counsellors are available in the event it would be easier for students to speak to them about their personal situation and make appropriate decisions. Another visitor Faiz said such exhibitors help in improving communication between students and universities and therefore are more helpful than just online conversations. "I have seen a lot of people come to this exhibition to ask about different opportunities available in the university. The face-to-face communication is much better than any other type of communication as the picture is clear and people can make better decisions about higher education," he said. Several university officials echoed the comments made by individuals, saying that such events give students more exposure to universities personally. The event also played an important role in helping people select a suitable destination for higher education depending on their needs.

Muscat: EduTraC Oman, Higher education, training & job opportunities expo will conclude today. The three-day exhibition being held at the Oman Convention & Exhibition Centre, provided a platform for leading local and foreign universities plus training institutions to network with students, parents and working executives interested in education and training at all levels.

Key pillars
Trevor McCartney, General Manager of OCEC said: "EduTraC Oman is an important event for the Sultanate and one that we are particularly proud to host as education and training and human resources are key pillars of Oman's strategy for economic development and diversification."

Third EduTraC expo kicks off

MUSCAT: The 3rd version of Higher Education, Training and Career Expo (EduTraC Oman 2016) was officially inaugurated at Oman Convention and Exhibition Centre yesterday by Hamad bin Khaimis al Amri, Under-Secretary at the Ministry of Manpower for Labour Affairs. The three-day event is organised by Al Nimr Expo.

The inauguration ceremony was also graced by several officials and delegates from various ministries, local universities and colleges and professionals from the education sector.

Hamad bin Khaimis al Amri said, "Education not only helps us in progressing in life, but also makes people aware of their rights and duties towards the nation. Education provides many opportunities in various fields for the development of the country and also makes people independent, builds confidence and self-esteem, which is very important for the development of a country. EduTraC Oman is a great event and is a great platform to improve the quality of Human Resources of Oman and build a better economy."

He pointed out that the wide participation by international organisations as well as the public and private institute and training centres provides many training and employment opportunities.

He also said that the establishment of the National Training Fund will contribute to enhancing training especially specialised training that help in taking over job opportunities at the market. Many categories will benefit from the Fund especially job-seekers. He noted that certain requirements should be met to build capacities of job-seekers.

He affirmed that the economic situation does not have a clear effect on the employment of job-seekers at the companies.

He added that all economic activities continue and the employment centres are working daily. The training centres are always continuing their training and employment efforts at the private sector, which is the main employer in the Sultanate.

The Expo, since its inception in 2014, has grown to bridge the gap between international higher education institutions and students in Oman planning to study abroad.

The Expo welcomes those interested in pursuing their higher education abroad to explore the variety of courses being offered and to meet representatives from universities, higher education institutions and English language course providers.

Also visitors can meet leading local and international training institutes offering vocational, technical and occupational training programmes.

It will also enable visitors to find suitable job opportunities offered by top public and private organisations operating in different sectors in the Sultanate.

October 20, 2016

MUSCAT - The Muscat University stall at the recently concluded EduTraC Oman 2016 attracted a large number of student visitors eager to know more about the newest university in Oman and the high quality degrees on offer.

The management and staff spoke to students about the specialised curriculum at the university, while also guiding students on what they should look for in their career.

Held under the patronage of Oman's Ministry of Higher Education and Ministry of Manpower, EduTraC Oman is a multi-sector recruitment event for higher education, training and job opportunities.

"The event has generated a lot of interest among Omani and international students. We spoke to students about the industry-engaged programmes we offer and their relevance to the social and economic priorities of Oman and of the region. Many students have registered their interest in joining Muscat University and we look forward to welcoming them as the very first cohort in our foundation and pre-master's programmes in October," said professor Anthony Cahalan, vice chancellor, Muscat University.

The vision of the university is to deliver first-class teaching supported by research that is rigorous and relevant for Omani students, expatriate students residents in Oman and international students. From September 2017, Muscat University will co-deliver bachelor and master's degrees in business and management, engineering and technology and transport and logistics with renowned UK universities, Aston and Cranfield, and flying faculty from the UK supported by Muscat-based staff.

Muscat University is currently based in the Children's Public Library in Qurm and will move to their premises in Ghubra in mid-2017.

Registrations are underway for the general foundation programme and the pre-master's programme. To know more or register, log on to www.muscatuniversity.edu.om

EduTraC Oman 2016 in its third edition will host 15 Higher Education Institutions from the US

Sep 26, 2016

Category: Exhibition, Education & Training

OMAN - The world's leading study destination for international students, the US boasts over 150 of the world's leading universities. The number of international students opting to study in the U.S. is rising every year, and may reach a million in the near future. The U.S. boasts over 4,000 top-ranking Universities, ranging from public Universities to private colleges. The higher education system in the U.S. is the finest in the world, attracting students with an unmatched diversity of courses and curricula. Whether students are seeking an Undergraduate, Post Graduate, or Doctorate degree, the U.S. offers the best professional programs in different sectors, with degrees recognized around the globe.

The third edition of EduTraC Oman will host 15 top quality Universities and Colleges from the U.S. The three-day expo is organised to help students and parents in Oman to plan their higher education, and research the various courses on offer in the US. Students visiting the exhibition will be able to obtain course information, and other information regarding scholarships, visa procedures, accommodation, etc. from Admission Officers of the universities participating.

Megan Lindle, Admissions Officer at the University of Cincinnati said, "Many undergraduate degrees at the University place students in paid work positions related to their academic program at world-renowned companies. The University of Cincinnati also offers a Global Scholarship for qualified international undergraduates, as well as competitive scholarships for qualified graduate applicants. We are fortunate to currently host 25 impressive Omani scholarship recipients and we look forward to welcoming future talent into our community and we are pleased to participate in EduTraC Oman 2016 to promote the University of Cincinnati to Omani students."

Martyn J. Miller, Interim Assistant Vice President, Temple University stated, "More than 3,500 engaged faculty members, and top-ranked programs—combine to create a dynamic academic environment that attracts students from around the world. We look forward to welcome students from Oman and we can assure they will avail high quality skills once they graduate and will be making huge contributions in the economy of the Country."

Christy Watkins, Public Affairs Officer at U.S. Embassy Muscat said, "The rising number of international students choosing to study in the U.S. is beneficial to both the United States and Oman. Through our participation in events like EduTraC, we hope to provide potential students with a variety of university choices that will meet their educational goals as they prepare to enter the workforce in Oman. University fairs like EduTraC support strong relationships between international students in Oman, and American institutions of higher learning. The U.S. Embassy is proud to offer a special presentation on applying for a student visa to the United States, and student life in the U.S., on the 19th of October, 2016, from 5:30 - 6:30 PM, in the Seminar Area at the Oman Convention & Exhibition Centre."

EduTraC Oman 2016 is organised by Al Nimr Expo, under the patronage of the Ministry of Higher Education, the Ministry of Manpower, and the Ministry of Education's National Career Guidance Center. EduTraC Oman 2016 is supported by the U.S. Embassy in Oman, and Education USA. The expo will be open to visitors from 18 - 20 October, at the new Oman Convention & Exhibition Centre, between 10:00 AM and 8:00 PM.
