- “Double First-Class” university in Fujian Province
- Training center for medical health personnel, research center for medical science and service center for healthcare in Fujian Province
- Fast-rising ranking: 162nd (ARWU Chinese Universities 2022)
- 21st (ARWU Chinese Medical Universities 2022)
- Top-tier passing rate in National Medical Practitioner Qualification Examination

Founded in 1937, Fujian Medical University (FMU) is one of the “double first-class” universities in Fujian province with the emphasis on medical science and coordinated development of multiple disciplines. In addition, the university is regarded as training center for medical health personnel, research center for medical science and service center for healthcare in Fujian province, a pilot university of the “Physician Education and Training Program of Excellence” of the Ministry of Education and one of the universities that are entitled to enroll CSC Scholarship students.

FMU is located in Fuzhou, with two campuses, covering a total area of 100 hectares. FMU has set up 23 schools and provides 26 majors, 4 national characteristic majors and 11 national first-class major development sites included. There are 6 doctoral programs in Level I academic disciplines and 2 professional doctoral programs in Clinical Medicine and Stomatology, and the total number of doctoral programs in our university ranks the 8th among the independent medical colleges in China.

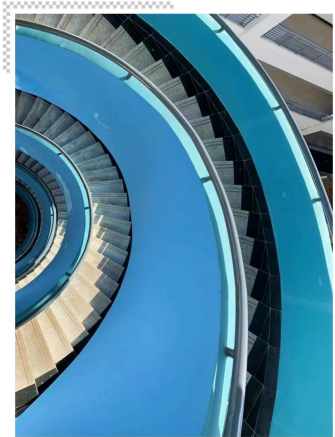

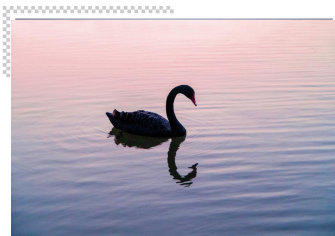

FMU develops 2 post-doctoral research stations (for Clinical Medicine and Basic Medical Sciences), 4 post-doctoral workstations, and 2 academician workstations. In the ESI global ranking, six disciplines including Clinical Medicine, Pharmacology and Toxicology, Chemistry, Neuroscience and Behavior, Biology and Biochemistry, and Molecular Biology and Genetics rank among the top 1%. Currently, there are 49 provincial and ministerial scientific research platforms, including the National Joint Engineering Center for Tumor Immunotherapeutic Drug Development and the Key Laboratory of Ministry of Education for Gastrointestinal Cancer.

FMU has 1646 full-time teachers and 13590 staff members (affiliated hospitals included), including 1148 professors and associate professors. 49 teachers have been selected as national high-level talents, and 2 have been awarded the Florence Nightingale Medal. In addition, there are two national level teaching teams in the university.

For now, FMU has over 18,000 students. Currently, there are about 400 international students from over 40 countries in FMU. FMU students are well known for top-ranked passing rate in the National Medical Practitioner Qualification Examination, especially for those majoring in clinical medicine, stomatology, preventive medicine and nursing. The students majoring in clinical medicine have been awarded the first prize in the East China competition area of National Clinical Skills Competition for College Students of Medical Colleges and Universities for seven consecutive years.

FMU boasts 4 directly affiliated hospitals and 11 non-directly affiliated hospitals. The Affiliated Union Hospital and the Affiliated First Hospital, as the first batch of high-level hospitals in Fujian Province, have been listed in the “Top 100 Most Competitive Hospitals in China” issued by Hongkong Asclepius Hospital Management Research Center for five consecutive years and the “Top 100 Hospitals in China” released by the Hospital Management Research Center of Fudan University.

Fujian Medical University adheres to an open attitude in running schools and has carried out multi-tiered and multi-dimensional exchanges and cooperation with more than 120 universities and research institutes at home and abroad.
